Dear Paul and,

I have a biographic sketch from a private research group on Jerry Thornley. It describes him as "graduate of The Freedom School". It also describes him as "editor off the Innovator, a monthly/newsletter"/ libertarian
It gives as its apparent source "(The Freedom School Newsletter, 6/15/65)."

I know nothing of The Freedom School or its newsletter. Is it possible this thing is known to you or in your area? Or that copies of the Newsletter are available, this one and/or others?

The copies of Innovator - have hardly fit the above description. Thornley also was not editor of them. He is listed as a contributing editor, with another, one Al Bray. The entire publication was a mere four pages, so the titles mean little. In earlier issues the publication called itself Liberal-Innovator, still requiring a special dictionary.

As of the time of this biography, his address was Los Angeles.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
